ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

According to the invention, the heating temperature is sequentially raised gradually to detect a parameter of a time function indicating the change of moisture percentage, and according to the parameter, the optimum heating temperature is calculated. Further, the required mass of a sample is calculated from the measurement accuracy set by an operator and the measurement accuracy of the mass.

5

10